WHAT TO EXPECT AFTER BOARDING YOUR PET

Sponsored by Vetoquinol USA

Picking your pet up from boarding is one of the best parts of coming home from your trip. Nothing beats your puppy's wagging tail or your cat giving you the stink eye.

Just like you, your pet is tired after their vacation. Here's what to expect when you and your loving pet get home:

- Your pet will sleep more than usual over the next 1-2 days. If your dog played at doggy daycare for all or part of his stay, he will likely sleep and lounge around a bit longer.
- Coming home can be stressful – your pet may take a few days to readjust to their surroundings. Getting them back on their feeding and exercise schedule will help with this
  - Cats tend to have more trouble re-adjusting. If your cat has a hard time, let her stay in her travel kennel for a day while she's getting used to the smells and sounds of your house
  - If you have multiple pets (and they didn't share a kennel at boarding), make sure they have plenty of space for their alone time.
- Exercising your pet is great! Make sure to ease back into it – if you took two weeks off, it's hard to jump back into your 8-mile run or intense workout. The same goes for your dog! Start small and slowly build back up to your usual routine.

Give your pet some personalized attention when you get home! Some play time or sitting and petting will help him calm down
